

Adarsh Arora Elected to The Economic Club of Chicago

Chicago, IL – February 2, 2005 – Adarsh Arora, President and CEO of Lisle Technology Partners has been elected to the Economic Club of Chicago. The Economic Club of Chicago is one of the nation's most influential forums for the dissemination of economic, business and social views. Founded in 1927, the Club has often been referred to as the "Who's Who and Who's To Be" of Chicago's business and professional life. Members must be must be sponsored and approved by a committee of their peers.

"I was happy to sponsor Adarsh's membership to the Economic Club of Chicago because of his commitment to help educate and develop Chicago's entrepreneurial community", said David Tolmie, Partner of Edgewater Growth Capital Partners.

Adarsh is active on the Board of Advisors of many technology start-up companies, Northwestern University's Electrical and Computer Engineering Department, Illinois Institute of Technology's Rice Campus, West Suburban Technology Enterprise Center and until recently on the Board of Directors of AccelChip Corporation.

Additionally, Adarsh is a frequent speaker for entrepreneurial events offered by the Midwest Entrepreneurs Forum, the Technology Executives Club, the Illinois Technology Enterprise Corporation, Chicago Entrepreneurial Center and the University of Chicago Graduate Business School, among others. The Chicago Mayor's Council of Technology Advisors has invited Adarsh to help them understand the issues involved in offshore outsourcing.

Adarsh is also President of TiE Midwest - TiE was founded in the Silicon Valley and it is a global organization established to guide and mentor entrepreneurs. Adarsh is the recipient of the 2004 Chicago Software Association's Annual City Lights Award. He received his doctorate degree in computer science from Northwestern University.